Research status of nursing economy in China based on literature analysis

Wang Lingying and Hu Xiuying

West China Hospital-Sichuan University, China

Objective: To understand the current situation of nursing economic development in China through the analysis of nursing economics.

Methods: 1053 articles related to the nursing economy were collected in the Chinese knowledge network, the Wanfang Data knowledge service platform and the VIP Chinese sci-tech journal database from 2013 to 2017.

Conclusion: The research content of nursing economy was extensive, but the theoretical system discipline developed slowly. Nursing cost accounting and price deviation need to build a reasonable cost accounting system; nursing service supply, demand imbalance and to set up a precise whole course care system.

Biography
