

3rd Euro Nursing & Medicare Summit

July 27-29, 2015 Valencia, Spain

Effect of nursing ethics course on ethical decision making status of students

Sevil Olgun

Adnan Menderes University, Turkey

Nursing ethics is a winning concept topicality parallel to bioethics. Nursing students to take courses in ethics training process, in terms of the creation of responsibility is important both very important in terms of raising awareness of the professional identity. In order to measure the status of ethical decision based on this research, students who take courses in ethics course was planned by the students. The research was done by Soke Adnan Menderes University Medical School studying in 90 nursing students. Data were collected using a data collection form and Ethical Dilemmas in Nursing Test contains the demographic characteristics of the students. Descriptive statistical methods to evaluate the data (number, percentage, mean, and standard deviation, median) were used. During the course the students ethical nursing education students, by the students who take the course of the ethical decision-making level is considered to be more advanced.

Notes: