Abdulla Alnakshabandi

United Arab Emirates University, UAE

A lot of complains against physicians is raised for the last years and some of them have a direct impact on physician's life and career. Negligence and mal-practice can lead physician to end his life as a surgeon or even end behind bars. Consent and miscommunications is one of most important points which lead to complains against physicians in medicine. Documentations and using of unusual terms is another well known reason of errors in medicine general and ENT specifically. Addressing the law of each country physicians is practicing is very vital. This will touch very important subjects which are specific for ENT as specialty. Having practice in four countries I had a chance to witness and engaged in many cases as physicians or in investigations committees. Working in Quality and Senior Management Positions in many hospitals give a wide exposure for these medicolegal points and I am very keen to share with my colleagues in my home country.
