Injectology Masterclass: Mastering facial rejuvenation with minimal filler use

As hyaluronic acid fillers are widely available in the market, the trend to flood the face with large volume of fillers became a common practice in the industry. However, such practice is not only impractical and not cost-effective; it can be also very dangerous, as it could lead to higher chances of vascular complications and facial overfilled syndromes. This masterclass reveals the science and art of Injectology, exploring the many rheologies of fillers, and how to make use of such knowledge to deliver more cost-effective and safer injection techniques.
