

48th World Congress on

Advanced Nursing Research

June 14-15, 2018 | Dublin, Ireland

Identifying and prioritizing your career passions

Diann Martin

Center for Healthcare Innovation, USA

Nursing leadership is a challenging role requiring knowledge, skills and professional behaviors. The current data however shows that only 30% of nurses in the US are engaged in their roles. In the international perspective, this percentage drops to 13%. The rest of us are existing and living in jobs and lives that do not spark engagement and interest. This workshop is designed to help you identify and prioritize the ingredients of your best life. You will explore the formula that helps us formulate our key life passions including our intentions, our plans for attending and taking actions and our need to let go and rely on the universe to help discover the path to achievement of our passions. When faced with an opportunity, a choice or a decision, we need to choose in favor of our passions. Join the author who is a Certified Success Coach and Certified Passion Test Facilitator in her workshop to explore ways to live your ideal life, both personally and professionally.

diann@thesuccessfulnurse.com

Notes: