The program includes plenary talks and keynote speeches from internationally renowned scientists. Each of these speakers helped to shape the modern concepts of the Field of Immunology.

Besides, there will be sessions for oral and poster presentations. Presentations in these sessions will provide an overview of the cutting-edge technologies being used to address difficult therapeutic and the theoretical issues in the Field of Immunology.

Immunology is unique in its approach of encouraging a dialogue between the basic and clinical scientists. We expect to have these dialogues both during the scientific sessions and networking time. We hope to make it submit particularly educational and inspiring for young scientists who will get an opportunity to interact with leading experts.
