Biomarkers have the additional potential to identify individuals susceptible to particular diseases. This conference is a podium that brings and shares collective knowledge and research explorations in biomarkers study. . In the recent years, the information about cancer biomarkers has increased largely providing a huge potential for improving the management of cancer patients by improving the accuracy of detection and efficacy of treatment. Latest technological advancements have enabled the examination of many possible biomarkers and renewed interest in developing new biomarkers. All such developments can be evidenced in this biomarker congress.

The success of the Biomarkers & Clinical Research Conference has given us the prospect to bring the congregation one more time. Conference Series LLC Ltd hosted the “10th World Congress on Biomarkers & Clinical Research” during October 18-20, 2017 in Baltimore, Maryland, USA.
